

The Search for Joy

Props:

- Cool whip lite container
- Light bulb
- Splenda - made from the real thing - sugar
- Bag of Pecan Delights
- Stick ponies

This skit will require three people:

- Dolche (Sweet)
- Feliz (Joy)
- Chipotle (Salsa)
- Narrator (could be the third person)

Narrator: Like a story of old, these two are on a quest to discover their deepest delight.

The two arrive: Dolche and Feliz are entering the room on stick ponies. Dolche begins to search the room for her deepest delight. Speaking in an exaggerated "Mexican" accent, Feliz begins to point out various material items that represent delight.

Feliz: Look, Dolche, could this be your deepest delight (holds up light bulb)?

Dolche: Oh, Feliz, it is the light but it does not delight me.

Feliz: What about this (holds up a cool whip lite container)? Could this delight your heart?

Dolche: Oooh it's light, it's sweet, but we're searching for my deepest delight and this isn't it.

They begin to move to another location in the room stopping again (clickety clop, clickety clop, clickety clop).

Feliz: Hey, here, this will bring you delight (holds up Splenda).

Dolche: Yes, it is sweet and it is like the real thing. It's even good for me, but it is not my deepest delight.

Feliz and Dolche are on the move again (clickety clop, clickety clop, clickety clop).

Feliz: Now here, your favorite, a pecan delight (holds up bag of pecan delights).

Dolche: Ah yes, my favorite – my stomach would be delighted, but it is not the delight of my heart (makes zipper motion between stomach and heart). You are getting closer.

Feliz: I wonder what Chipotle is doing?

Dolche: Who?

*Chipolte is sitting on a bench reading her Bible.
Feliz points and Dolche corrects her pronunciation.*

Feliz and Dolche begin to spar on the correct pronunciation.

You say, Chipotle.

I say, Chipaw.

Chiptly, tomato tomato...

Dolche: Let's just call her Salsa.

Chipotle: Are you looking for something?

Dolche: We've been searching but I don't think we will ever find it.

Feliz: No kidding. I have shown her everything.

Chipotle: What is it?

Dolche: I want to find my deepest delight.

Chipotle: You'll find that right here in I s. 61:10, "I delight greatly in the Lord; my soul rejoices in my God."

Chipotle: Knowing the Lord and having a relationship with Him will delight your heart. Come let me show you more (the three depart, stage left).
